Contribution in the research collaboration symposium

Dr. Amr Mohamed has presented the college of engineering (CENG) for the pillar of “ICT for health”. He divided his talk into two parts. First, he gave an overview about the research teams inside the CENG working on areas related to ICT for health. Then, he talked in more details about the research work done by his group related to ICT for health, including smart health for Internet of Things (IoT) applications and cybersecurity for medical devices.
